Thanks for the clarification. I hope to have some additional discussions on the landfill with various folks this week. As far as the original site still needing cleanup, my strong preference is only to track the work, not be directly involved. My rationale is that the discussions between ADEC and the AF seem to be very much on track, and if the Seattle crew can avoid spending time/resources on this aspect of the work, I'm happy. While not a TSCA consideration per se, I'm hoping the outcome of this process is that the AF (and all federal facilities in AK) do a much better job of following and overseeing the CERCLA process so we don't get into these messes in the future.

That's right I am trying to divest myself of Port Heiden; I am only interested in the portion of the site that still needs cleanup.

Weston continues to send me info, probably in the hopes I will forward it to you.

Yes, the landfill and the issue of PCB disposal off-site is an issue for ADEC and you and Dan.
